1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the existence of a solution of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ . It is shown that the system has a solution if and only if the parameters satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

2. In the second part of the paper, the problem of the uniqueness of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is unique if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

3. The third part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution is continuous and differentiable with respect to the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ .

4. In the fourth part of the paper, the problem of the stability of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is stable if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

5. The fifth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution tends to zero as the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  tend to zero.

6. In the sixth part of the paper, the problem of the existence of a solution for arbitrary values of the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  is considered. It is shown that the system has a solution if and only if the parameters satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

7. The seventh part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution is continuous and differentiable with respect to the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ .

8. In the eighth part of the paper, the problem of the uniqueness of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is unique if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

9. The ninth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution is continuous and differentiable with respect to the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ .

10. In the tenth part of the paper, the problem of the stability of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is stable if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

13. The thirteenth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution is continuous and differentiable with respect to the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ .

14. In the fourteenth part of the paper, the problem of the uniqueness of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is unique if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

15. The fifteenth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution is continuous and differentiable with respect to the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ .

16. In the sixteenth part of the paper, the problem of the stability of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is stable if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

17. The seventeenth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution tends to zero as the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  tend to zero.

18. In the eighteenth part of the paper, the problem of the existence of a solution for arbitrary values of the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  is considered. It is shown that the system has a solution if and only if the parameters satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

19. The nineteenth part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the solution. It is shown that the solution is continuous and differentiable with respect to the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$ .

20. In the twentieth part of the paper, the problem of the uniqueness of the solution is considered. It is shown that the solution is unique if the parameters  $\alpha$  and  $\beta$  are positive and satisfy the condition  $\alpha + \beta = 1$ .

BATH DROWNING ACCIDENT.

Particulars of the Fatality--A Sad Funeral--Floral Wreaths.

A sad and melancholy accident occurred at Bath on Tuesday last, whereby two young men, aged respectively 21 and 18 years, lost their lives. Fuller particulars of the accident are to hand. Cornelius, Arnold and Frank Mills, sons of Cornelius Mills, butcher, went fishing in a small skiff, at Campion's Point, a short distance east of Mr. Finkle's dock. They had been fishing for about an hour and concluded to move to another point close by. In lifting up the anchor they capsized the boat, and were thrown into the water. The skiff being old and heavily laden with many coats of paint, would not hold them up. The eldest two thereupon told their little brother, Frank, to hang on to the boat while they struck for the shore, a distance of about twenty yards. The boy Frank clung to the boat and screamed for assistance for his brothers, who had, while endeavouring to reach shore, sank to the bottom. Mr. Arthur Campion, at work in a field near by, heard the cries for help and ran down to the shore. He and Mr. Thurston, the owner of the capsized boat, found Frank still clinging to the boat, and rescued him, but Cornelius and Arnold were not in sight. Frank told them the direction they had taken, and Campion succeeded in getting them ~~in~~ out of the water and conveying them to the shore. They were both apparently dead. He did all he could to resuscitate them, and in the meantime dispatched a man for the doctor a distance of a quarter of a mile. Dr. Price hurried to the scene of the disaster, and worked like a Trojan to bring them back to life, but without success. There is little doubt that these two estimable young men might have been saved when first brought from the water had the parties known how to go to work upon them, but knowledge of this description among the masses is very deficient. The young men who lost their lives in this disaster were of great promise, and their loss is a calamity. Much sympathy is expressed for the parents in their deep affliction. The funeral obsequies took place on Wednesday, and their remains were followed to the grave by an immense number of sympathisers. They were placed side by side in the grave. Their coffins were fairly loaded with floral wreaths, crosses, etc., showing the esteem in which they were held. The Rev. W. Dyke, of the Methodist Church, preached a very able and effective sermon on the occasion, and in the course of his remarks eulogized the efforts put forth by Campion in rescuing even one of the three. The sad event cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood.

Odessa Man, 91, Recalls Time He Worked for 50 Cents Daily

Sept. 15, 1952

By FRED B. PENSE
Staff Writer

The time when he worked for 50 cents a day was recalled by James G. Mills, Odessa, who will celebrate his 92nd birthday on Oct. 16 next. Mr. Mills, who enjoys fairly good health, said he was called upon to work from daylight to dark for this small wage.

Employed for many years on farms in the Moscow district, Mr. Mills in recent years has worked in the saw mill in the Village of Odessa, and he also has delivered kindling to homes in the village.

Mr. Mills was married 63 years ago at Yarker. His wife, who is now 89 years of age, still does all the work about the home. Mr. Mills works his own garden.

The family consists of two sons and three daughters: They are Alfred and Okel Mills of Odessa; Mrs. Roy Emmons, Odessa, Mrs. Effie Laraby, Bath, and Mrs. Myrtle Hudgins.

"My time now is pretty well filled with working in my garden and doing the daily chores," this venerable old gentleman remarked. "My wife and I are happy to have been spared to live so long a time together," he concluded.
